

Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA)

1. What Is The FAFSA?

- The Office of Federal Student Aid (OFSA) uses the information reported on the FAFSA to determine qualifications for grants, loans, and work-study programs for students attending colleges, universities, and/or career schools.
- States and post-secondary institutions use information reported on the FAFSA to award scholarships.
- FAFSA completion leads to a Student Aid Report (SAR), which lists the "Expected Family Contribution" (EFC). The EFC is the financial amount a student/family should be able to provide toward the student's cost of education.
  - Questions/Concerns about projected EFC should be directed to the Financial Aid Office of your post-secondary institution.
- Federal financial aid is issued directly to the post-secondary institution on your behalf.
- FAFSA filing options and additional information can be accessed at <https://fafsa.ed.gov>
