Utah National Guard Establishes Advisory Board to Assist with Camp Williams Munitions Investigation

CAMP WILLIAMS, Utah – The Utah National Guard is seeking applicants for its Restoration Advisory Board, or RAB, in order for residents and other stakeholders to provide input to the Utah National Guard as it begins its search for old munitions at six sites just outside Camp Williams' current boundaries.

Residents from Herriman, Bluffdale, Lehi, Saratoga Springs, Eagle Mountain and residents from unincorporated areas of Salt Lake and Utah Counties are eligible to apply for board membership.

In addition to residents from local communities, the RAB will also include representatives from local governments and other groups. The Board will bring interested parties together to reflect the diverse interests and concerns of community members. It also provides a place for residents to voice their concerns and offer their perspective to the Utah National Guard regarding the munitions investigation.

Meetings are open to the public and will be held on a quarterly basis. During RAB meetings, members will receive updated information about the Military Munitions Response Program (MMRP) investigation.

RAB members serve voluntarily and can expect that this position will require three to four hours of their time each month. Members will also act as liaisons between Camp Williams and the community or organization they represent. The Utah National Guard will encourage RAB members to communicate with their respective communities about the MMRP investigative process.

The MMRP addresses munitions and explosives of concern that may be located on lands no longer used by the Utah National Guard.

Those interested in applying for RAB membership should contact Melissa Porter at 801-825-3570.
