Utah Army Guard Soldiers Return from Kosovo Deployment

DRAPER, Utah – Over the next few days, approximately 20 soldiers assigned to the Utah Army National Guard's 204th Maneuver Enhancement Brigade will return to Utah from their 10-month deployment to Kosovo.

Eleven soldiers will return Saturday, Feb. 22, via commercial aircraft at Salt Lake International Airport.

Soldiers will arrive at Terminal 1 at Salt Lake International Airport on American Airlines flights at 11:55 a.m. and 1:40 p.m., respectively. Flight times for remaining soldiers will be announced early next week as that information becomes available.

The mission of these soldiers from the 204th was to support NATO Kosovo Force 17, providing a safe and secure environment in Kosovo as a third responder behind the Kosovo Police and the EULEX (European Rule of Law in Kosovo).

Soldiers arrived from overseas at Fort Hood, Texas, last week and have been undergoing demobilization processing.
